

10 May 2016

For Immediate Release

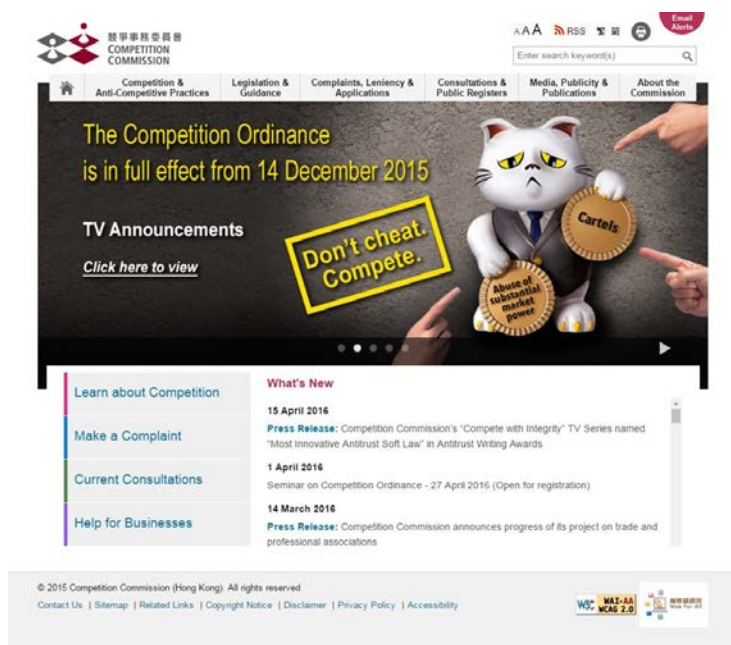

Competition Commission wins Gold in Web Accessibility Recognition Scheme

The Competition Commission (Commission)'s website (www.compcomm.hk) has won a Gold Award in the Web Accessibility Recognition Scheme 2016 jointly organised by the Office of Government Chief Information Officer and the Equal Opportunities Commission.

Featuring latest news on the Commission's work, details of seminars and events as well as various publications and educational materials about the Competition Ordinance (Ordinance), the Commission's website incorporates web accessibility designs reflecting the Commission's commitment to corporate social responsibility and the building of a caring and inclusive society.

A Commission spokesperson said, "The Commission's website is an important public interface and advocacy platform to disseminate information to our stakeholders and the public. The Ordinance is a new law benefiting the whole Hong Kong community and it is the Commission's objective to make our information on the website accessible to all members of society."

The Web Accessibility Recognition Scheme is held annually to show appreciation to organisations for making their websites accessible. The Gold Award is the highest accolade in the Scheme presented to organisations whose websites have fulfilled 24 judging criteria. These criteria include meaningfully sequenced and structured contents, clear headings and informative links, and high compatibility with assistive technologies to facilitate smooth navigation.

The Competition Commission wins a Gold Award in the Web Accessibility Recognition Scheme 2016 jointly organised by the Office of Government Chief Information Officer and the Equal Opportunities Commission.